Meet our Bathroom Specialist

We like you to meet Jayce Lim, he is our resident Bathroom Specialist. He had been with Hemsley for more than 14 years now. His acquired expertise and knowledge in building your dream bathroom came through hands on experience and working closely with customers and homeowners.

Jayce is driven by his passion in helping each and everyone achieve their own dream bathroom.

Q: I am renovating my bathroom, which WC would you recommend - a WC Suite, Floor-Standing WC or Wall Hung WC?

A: The choice of WC mainly depends on your bathroom layout, space and the existing waste outlet (if it's not newly built). But if we set those aside, let me give a few points on how each type is different, to give you an idea which one fits your bathroom.

WC Suites

These type of WCs are very traditional in design - a pan paired with an exposed cistern. This type usually can fit all bathrooms, but set a drawback in aesthetics because it is less attractive compared to wall-hung or free-standing WCs. Like they say less is more, so a hidden cistern can actually make a big difference in your bathroom.

Floor-Standing WC

Floor-Standing WCs are more modern and sleek with the water tank is hidden in the wall or ledge. This is an alternative if you cannot use a Wall-Hung WC due to trap distance.

Wall-Hung WC

Wall-Hung WCs have the same concept as a floor-standing WCs, its cistern is concealed in the wall or built-in ledge. It gives your bathroom a clean cut look and will be a lot easier to clean as well.

If you needed more information, you can check your contractor, designer or our Bathroom Specialist to know which type best fits your bathroom.

The Panorama range is a long-standing success from GSI ceramics, it offers various solutions both in terms of design and technical features.

Two lines of thought were inspired by the Panorama concept: the first with a monolithic and compact design has the typical egg-shape and its size is generous enough to allow a comfortable use; the second with a more "basic" design but still in line with the rest of Panorama range.
